Language of the Material:	English .
Abstract:	Olgivanna Lloyd Wright (Olga Lazović, Olga Lazović Hinzenburg) b. Montenegro, December 27, 1898- March 1, 1985, married Frank Lloyd Wright in 1928. She was a dancer, author, and composer and helped found and operate the Taliesin Fellowship. She was vital to the preservation of Frank Lloyd Wright's legacy through the Taliesin Fellowship, preservation and fundraising campaigns, and publications on her late husband and his work, including her books Our House , The Shining Brow , the Roots of Life , and Frank Lloyd Wright: His Life, His Work, His Words . The collection contains extensive correspondence as well as Olgivanna Lloyd Wright's notes, drafts and typed manuscripts of her books and unpublished writing, autobiographical material, transcriptions of taped audio material including weekly talks to the Taliesin Fellowship as well as public talks, and newspaper clippings of published articles.

Scope and Contents

This collection provides details about the founding of the Taliesin Fellowship and daily life at Taliesin, particularly after the death of Frank Lloyd Wright in 1959. It provides information on the personal relationships of Frank Lloyd Wright in his later years and his and Olgivanna Lloyd Wright's social circle. Moreover, the collection gives insight into this unique architectural organization and community centered on the architectural theory and lifestyle philosophies of its founders. It demonstrates the central role Olgivanna Lloyd Wright had as the dominant figure running the Taliesin Fellowship from 1959 to 1984.

Processing Information

The correspondence was catalogued prior to the collection arriving at Avery Library by Indira Berndtson of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation. The non-correspondence papers were re-processed by Rachel Hutcheson (Graduate Internship in Primary Sources) in 2019 under the supervision of Shelley Hayreh, Avery Archivist.

The collection in its current state reflects intervention by those that sought to impose a chronological order on the materials, probably in order to better understand the activities of Olgivanna Lloyd Wright and the fellowship together. Dates are generally uncertain because of the working methods of the creator. She would first audio record her statements, have the audio transcribed and then edit multiple drafts. The content is often repeated across series.

Additionally, a long term autobiography project starting in the late 1960s until 1985 resulted in much duplication of previous texts. There is a considerable amount of drafting and redrafting, collating and copying of various recollections, stories, and talks and lectures. However, in order for the greatest benefit to future researchers, the reorganization seeks to make the activities of Olgivanna Lloyd Wright and the Fellowship distinct from the individual writings of OLLW that are autobiographical, and thereby make the material more searchable by subject and material type.

Because the collection features many duplications of material in manuscripts, newspapers, and duplications of them spread out in multiple containers, the processing archivist sought to reduce the number of redundancies scattered throughout the collection and to make clear, when possible, when manuscripts were used in multiple publications.

Series II: Talks and Lectures

Scope and Contents

The Series is divided into two sub-series. Subseries 1: Fellowship talks (transcripts) includes transcriptions of recorded audio material delivered by Olgivanna Lloyd Wright to members of the Taliesin Fellowship nearly each week, usually on Sundays organized chronologically from 1952-1984. These talks continued a tradition begun by Frank Lloyd Wright; they similarly cover a range of topics from Frank Lloyd Wright's Organic Architecture (often read from transcriptions of his Fellowship talks) to the daily activities of the Fellows including admonishing their behavior. Many include her reading from poetry and philosophy and her own theories on moral character and the ethics of hard work. Subseries 2: Public lectures (transcriptions) consists of public lectures delivered by Wright from 1958-1982 are organized chronologically. These include dedications of buildings like the Marin County Administrative Building and the Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium, as well as lectures delivered to civic and arts organizations.

Series VI: Newspaper Column - Drafts

Scope and Contents

Includes chronologically organized drafts (by publication date) for articles published in OLLW's Newspaper column entitled "Our House" published in The Capital Times (WI) from 1958-1962 and The Arizona Republic (ca. 1960-62?). Most files include the draft sent to the newspaper as well as earlier edited drafts, and later photocopies of drafts. These articles formed the basis for books, many subjects and articles are repeated in books (Our House, Shining Brow, Roots of Life). OLLW often used material from the articles in her Fellowship Talks, topics and stories are repeated.
