Biographical / Historical

William Theodore "Ted" de Bary (August 9, 1919, The Bronx, New York – July 14, 2017, Tappan, New Jersey) was a pioneering scholar and educator of Asian humanities. Growing up in Leonia, New York, de Bary entered Columbia University as an undergraduate in 1937. In 1941, de Bary began graduate studies in Chinese at Harvard University. The following year he was recruited by the U.S. Navy to undergo intensive training in Japanese and serve as an intelligence officer in the Pacific Theatre of World War II. He achieved the rank of Lieutenant Commander and worked briefly for the Office of Naval Intelligence in 1946. His experiences in East Asia during the war persuaded him of the importance of continuing to learn from East Asian cultures. In 1947, de Bary left the military and returned to Columbia for graduate study in Chinese, and received an M.A. in Japanese studies in 1948. In 1949, de Bary was a Fulbright fellow at Beijing University. Together with his close friend Donald Keene, he studied under Ryusaku Tsunoda at Columbia. De Bary gained his PhD in 1953 with a dissertation titled "A Plan for the Prince: the Ming-I Tai-Fang Lu of Huang Tsung-His," and began teaching at Columbia immediately afterwards.

During his decades-long professorship, de Bary essentially established the field of Neo-Confucian Studies with such books as Self and Society in Ming Thought (1970) and the Unfolding of Neo-Confucianism (1975). He was also President of the Association of Asian Studies from 1969 to 1970. At Columbia, De Bary chaired the Department of East Asian Languages and Culture between 1960 and 1966. He was active in faculty intervention during the protests of 1968, and served as the Executive Vice President of Academic Affairs and Provost from 1971 to 1978. He played a part in reshaping the Core Curriculum of Columbia College to include Great Books and classes devoted to non-Western civilizations. De Bary was also known for rarely missing a Columbia Lions football game.

As a recognized educator, de Bary has won Columbia's Great Teacher Award in 1969, its Lionel Trilling Book Award in 1983, the Mark Van Doren Award for Great Teaching in 1987, the Philolexian Award for Distinguished Literary Achievement. De Bary served as the director of the Heyman Center for the Humanities and continued teaching until several months before his death in 2017 at the age of 97.

Series II: Career Files, 1948-2017

Scope and Contents

Series II contains the spectrum of materials related to de Bary's decades-long career, primarily at Columbia University. Organized alphabetically, Sub-Series II.1 includes all general files, notably those related to the establishment of the Committee on Oriental Studies, departmental affairs within, first, the Department of Chinese and Japanese and later, the Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALAC). Additional files shed light on de Bary's roles in various university committees and project groups. Sub-Series II.2 includes administrative files related to the Core Commission and the Core Curriculum. Note that the actual teaching contents of the Core Curriculum are gathered under Series VI: Teaching/Course Materials. Sub-Series II.3 includes general materials on the Heyman Center for the Humanities, which was established during de Bary's term as the Provost. Additional Heyman files may be have been interspersed in the neighboring Sub-Series.

Arrangement

Arranged alphabetically

Scope and Contents

Over the course of his decades-long career, Professor de Bary had carried out multiple conventions in organizing correspondences. Sub-Series V.1 includes all titled correspondence folders organized alphabetically. Sub-Series V.2 includes files from primarily between 1970s and early 2000s, grouped by correspondents' initials. Sub-Series V.3 includes early correspondence from primarily between 1959 and 1971, organized chronologically by year. Sub-Series V.4 gathers student recommendations letters written mostly between 1992 and 2002, organized alphabetically. Additional correspondences with students might be located in neighboring Sub-Series, in departmental files, as well as Sub-Series VI.4: Student Thesis Proposals and Dissertations.

Series VI: Teaching/Course Materials, 1959-2016

Scope and Contents

Series VI consists of teaching materials, grades and reports, and correspondences from courses in the Core Curriculum and on general East Asian Humanities. Sub-Series VI.1 includes materials on the Faculty Transcultural Workshop/Colloquium Workshop, Nobility and Civility workshops, Nature and Human Nature, and Classics for an Emerging World. Sub-Series VI.2 gathers materials from courses such as East Asian Humanities: Major Works, Oriental Civilizations (East Asian Civilizations), Introduction to Chinese Thought, Introduction to Japanese Thought, Sung-Ming Thought Seminars, etc. Organized by course title and chronologically, the materials provide great insights on the evolution of the course contents. Sub-Series VI.3 includes miscellaneous course and grading files. Sub-Series VI.4 gathers proposals and manuscripts from students, mostly at the PhD level. Additional exchanges with students may be identified in departmental files and in Series V: Correspondence.

Series X: Writing and Publishing, 1955-2012Scope and Contents

Series X collects manuscripts, drafts, and editorial notes of the myriad writing and publishing projects of de Bary. Sub-Series X.1-3 includes chapter-to-chapter drafts and correspondences of the three East Asian Sources volumes that de Bary compiled and edited. Additional correspondences, for example with Irene Bloom on Sources of Chinese Tradition, may be identified in Series V: Correspondence or Sub-Series X.5: Publications. Sub-Series X.5 includes drafts from de Bary's other books as well as administrative and editorial exchanges with presses and publishers about budgets, rights, royalties, etc. Sub-Series X.4, organized chronologically, gathers de Bary's articles, lectures, and speeches. Majority of the articles are on academic subjects; social commentaries and event speeches appear sporadically.
