Biographical / Historical

Patricia Koo Tsien (October 17, 1917, Washington DC – April 25, 2015, Montgomery Village, Maryland) was the daughter of May Tang Koo and V.K. Wellington Koo, the prominent Chinese diplomat. Patricia Tsien went to the Garden School in Buckinghamshire, England, and received Bachelor of Science degree in Physics from University of London, before joining the United Nations in 1947. During the decades of work at the UN, she became a senior official in the Department for Political Affairs, Trusteeship, and Decolonization. Her work centered on the project of decolonization in particular. Patricia Tsien was the founding president of the Ad Hoc Group on Equal Rights for Women in the UN Secretariat. After her retirement in 1979, Patricia Tsien was a long time member of the Association of Former International Civil Servants and served as its president for 3 years.

Kia Chi Tsien (Kiachi Tsien, June 11, 1916, Beijing, China – June 14, 1993, New York, New York) was born in an influential family from Jiashan, Zhejiang and moved to Shanghai at an early age. Tsien attended the Nanyang High School and in 1935, the Jiao Tong (Chiao Tung) University and earned his undergraduate degree in physics in 1939. After his graduation, Tsien travelled to the interior of China and got a job with the Ministry of Transportation to supervise the establishment of telephone lines. Soon he was appointed as instructor by the Chinese Red Cross to teach the X-Ray technology to students. In 1941, Tsien was appointed assistant professor of physics at the Jiao Tong University campus in Chongqing. Together with his family, Tsien moved to England in 1944 and earned his MA degree in physics from University of Cambridge in 1946. Between 1949 and 1952, Tsien was offered an appointment with the UNESCO in Paris and worked on surveys of technical facilities and communication statistics related to film and radio. Since the 1950s and on, Tsien gradually confirmed his career interest in radiology through working as a Physicist at the Memorial Hospital in New York, NY and as Assistant Professor of Radiological Physics at the Temple University School of Medicine and Hospital in Philadelphia, PA. In 1959, he became Senior Officer of Medical Section at the International Atomic Energy Agency and attended conferences in Vienna, Austria. In 1964, Tsien was appointed Professor and Director, Section of Radiation Physics, Department of Radiology, and Professor of Medical Physics, Temple University Health Sciences Center, and continued this job until his retirement in 1976. Throughout his career, Tsien was also an artist and photographer and had held multiple exhibitions across various venues, and served, both before and after his retirement, as consultant to different physics, radiological, and cultural organizations.

In late 1940, Patricia Koo joined the Chinese Red Crosses' X-Ray Unit and met Kia Chi Tsien. They were married in 1941 and had their son, Michael (澄清, 1941-2010) the same year. Their daughter, Ying Ying (英英), was born in England in 1945. The family moved to the United States in 1946, lived in Bridgeport, CT, Parkway Village, NY, Mt. Vernon, NY, before moving to Manhattan, NY in around 1965. Both Patricia Tsien and Kia Chi Tsien were enthusiastic in preserving the rich family history of the Koos and Tsiens. In 1986, Kia Chi Tsien had compiled photographs of Dr. Wellington Koo, which were shown in exhibitions in Beijing and Tianjin, before becoming part of the permanent exhibition on Wellington Koo at the Jiading Museum, in Shanghai. Koo and Tsien also participated in the publication and translation of Reminiscences of Wellington Koo, the oral history and memoir of Dr. Wellington Koo.
