Historical Note

The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRRA) was created at a 44-nation conference at the White House on November 9, 1943 to confront the massive task of global reconstruction during and after World War II. Initially created as an arm of the United Nations, the name for the allied coalition fighting the Axis powers, it would eventually be subsumed under the heading of the international organization created in 1945 of the same name.

---

UNNRA was headed until 1946 by Herbert H. Lehman, a former governor of the state of New York and head of the U. S. State Department's Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations (OFRRO). Subsequent directors would include Fiorello LaGuardia and Major General Lowell Ward. Subject to the authority of the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Forces (SHAEF) in Europe, UNRRAs activities were global and involved a vast array of activities. These encompassed immediate relief for populations affected by war as well as aid for the recovery of agriculture industry and social services. These activities were not limited just to countries that had been battlegrounds, as numerous countries received aid simply to deal with the widespread dislocation created by war. UNRRA was also active in the massive repatriations of millions of displaced persons that characterized the war years and immediate aftermath.

Historical Note

However, all of UNRRAs programs were not directly related to recovery from war. In many areas, particularly China, UNRRA programs were not only aimed a promoting recovery but economic, social, and political development over and above pre-war conditions. In this respect UNRRA became an example to many at the time for the efforts at modernization that were taking shape in the postwar world. Overall UNRRA was popular internationally. However within the United States, by far the largest donor to the program, there was increasing concern after the war that the country was carrying too great of a burden. Accordingly the United States allowed the mandate of UNRRA to expire on schedule in 1947. While this was a disappointment to many, aspects of UNRRAs programs were taken over by the new United Nations and its specialized agencies, particularly the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) and the World Health Organization (WHO), as well as the International Refugee Organization (IRO) which inherited the care of 643,000 displaced persons in 1948.

---

Scope and Content

---

The reports and correspondence relating to UNRRA were arranged according to the nine administrative divisions of that organization that generated the documents: Bureau of Administration (26 reels); Office of the Diplomatic Adviser (4 reels); Office of the Director

General (20 reels); Office of the Economic Adviser (4 reels); Office of Far Eastern Affairs (9 reels); Office of the General Counsel (19 reels); Office of the Historian (16 reels); Office of Public Information (1 reel); and Secretariat Executive Office (3 reels). Within each division, subsidiary bodies are typically separated into subject and country files.

Scope and Content

---

The UNRRA papers are of primary importance to the study of the early years of the United Nations, United States foreign policy, and to the history of wartime and postwar relief and refugee initiatives in the 1940s. These reels are a secondary resource for the study of conditions in particular regions of the world (Europe, North Africa, Middle East, Soviet Union, China, Southeast Asia) as well as the expansion of bureaucratic structures (state and non-governmental, military and non-military) in the twentieth century.

Associated Material

The primary repository of official UNRRA documents is the United Nations Archives in New York City and elsewhere. Record Group 17, in manuscript form, was the basis for this collection of microfilm reels. Also quite relevant are records pertaining to the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO). Records of CNRRA and BOTRA were taken over by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Taipei, Republic of China.

Associated Material

Unofficial correspondence of individuals involved with UNRRA in Europe are also an important way of understanding the organization's work. Among this potentially large group are those assembled at the Herbert Lehman Suite and Papers, part of Columbia University's Rare Book and Manuscript Library (Paul Baerwald, Hugh R Jackson, Robert G.A Jackson, Herbert H. Lehman, James G. McDonald, Marshall MacDuffie, and Richard Brown Scandrett) as well as the papers of Philip Caryl Jessup and Francis Bowes Sayre at the Library of Congress, Manuscript Division.

Associated Material

The relationship between UNRRA and broader U.S. military operations is explored in presidential libraries of Harry Truman and Franklin D. Roosevelt, as well as several record groups at the National Archives and Records Administration, Office of the National Archives, Washington DC: The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion; State Department, Records Relating to the Problems of Relief and Refugees in Europe Arising from World War II and its Aftermath; General Records of the United States Department of State, Record Group 59 (country records as well as those records dealing with interaction with the UN).

Associated Material

The specific experience of UNRRA in Asia is documented in several collections at the Hoover Institution Archives at Stanford University, including the individual records of Margaret Eleanor Fait, William J. Green, J. Franklin Ray, Oliver J. Todd, and Arthur N. Young, as well as the Register of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, China Office, Records, 1943-1948.

Associated Material

Records pertaining to efforts by non-governmental refugee organizations closely coordinated with UNRRA include those of CARE (Cooperation for American Remissions to Europe) at the New York Public Library, Archives and Manuscripts Division, and numerous organizational collections at the Library of the American Jewish Historical Society in Waltham, Mass., the American Jewish Archives in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in New York City repositories such as the Leo Baeck Institute Archive and Library, the YIVO Institute Archive, and the Center for Migration Studies Library.
