Summary

The collection contains documents about land holdings in and around Yonkers and Westchester and Dutchess Counties, New York owned by the wealthy Philipse, Gouverneur, Verplanck, Livingston, and other allied families. Included are grants, patents, deeds, indentures, transfers, wills, leases, accounts, maps, and records of civil and chancery court actions. These records not only chronicle legal actions, riots and uprisings of the European colonial settlers related to land disputes against these wealthy colonial settler families, but also record their interactions with the true landowners the Wappinger Confederacy.

The Wappinger ('easterners'), a confederacy of the Algonquian Indians, formerly occupied the eastern bank of the Hudson River from Poughkeepsie to Manhattan Island and the country extending east beyond the Connecticut River. The Wappinger Chief Daniel Nimham (1726-1778) fought a long sustained battle to recover tribal lands fraudulently taken through the Philipse Highland Patent, 13 August 1702 (document (56)). In 1766, Nimham traveled to England, presented his case, and received a favorable ruling before the Royal Lords of Trade. In New York Provincial Council proceedings, the governor ruled against Chief Nimham stating that returning the land to the Indians would set an adverse precedent regarding similar disputes. Some aspects of this long legal fight can be reviewed in the following documents: (45) through (49); (54) through (56); and (99).

Unfortunately, documents that contain references to the enslavement of African-Americans were withdrawn before Columbia University received the collection. However, please refer to the original PDF finding aid URL located below at "Other Finding Aids", which identifies in highlighted yellow all removed items.

Finally, many of the documents bear the signature of Roger Morris, Sir Henry Clinton, General Sir William Howe, General William Tryon, Edward Hyde Viscount Cornbury (later, 3rd Earl of Clarendon), John Jacob Astor, and various members of the landholding families of the area. In addition, there are some reproductions of Philipse and Gouverneur family portraits.

(33 ½) Adolphe Philipse Esq to John Cruger--Indenture 21st June 1789	box 1	folder 33.5
(34) Chancery Suit. Complaint of Johanna Philipse, Frederick Philipse, Philip Philipse, Beverley Robinson and wife and Mary Philipse, executors and devisees of Frederick Philipse, heir-at-law to Adolph Philipse.	box 1	folder 34

Scope and Contents

The subject of this extremely voluminous complaint is that the above [Johanna Philipse, Frederick Philipse, Philip Philipse, Beverley Robinson and wife and Mary Philipse] were entitled to 1/8 of the personal property of Adolph Philipse; that Joseph Reade, who married Anna, daughter of Philip and Ann French, was appointed administrator and was instructed to take advice upon all matters with Joseph Murray, Esq., that the personal estate was very large and that Philip French and Cornelius Van Horn had brought suits for large sums and that Reade, without consulting his counsel and apparently with intent to favor his relations, had confessed judgment without making any defense, and refused to make any effort to have the judgment set aside. That claims for vary large sums were made by Frances Van Cortlandt, executrix, Frederick Van Cortlandt, executor of Jacobus Van Cortlandt, deceased, and that Read in the same manner had confessed judgment for 4,000 pounds, although most of the claims were fictitious, among others a large sum for board while visiting at the house of Jacobus Van Cortlandt as a relative, neither expecting to pay nor Mr. Cortlandt ever expecting to charge for the same. The complainants pray for relief as usual. It would seem as if the Van Cortlandt family had made a [illegible] effort to obtain from the estate of Adolph Philipse dead, a part of the wealth which they failed to get from Adolph Philipse living. Attached to the complaint are several lengthy schedules, showing dealings with great numbers of people, and curious as giving the prices of almost every conceivable article used and dealt in at that time (1752). Mentions--John Abul, N.
