Summary

The collection consists of the editorial and production archives of Random House, Inc. from its founding in 1925 to the 1990s. The correspondence and editorial files include many of the prominent novelists and short story writers from 20th-century American and European literature: Saul Bellow; Erskine Caldwell; Truman Capote; William Faulkner; Sinclair Lewis; André Malraux; Gertrude Stein and Thornton Wilder. Among the poets there are files for W. H. Auden; Allen Ginsberg; Robinson Jeffers; Robert Lowell; and Stephen Spender. In the area of theater there are files for Maxwell Anderson; Moss Hart; Lillian Hellman; Eugene O'Neill; and Tennessee Williams. Random House transacted business with many fine presses and noted typographers and the archives contain files for Nonesuch Press, Grabhorn Press and Golden Cockerel Press, as well as for Bruce Rogers, Valenti Angelo, and Edwin, Jane, and Robert Grabhorn.

Summary

Random House published James Joyce's ULYSSES. Because of its alleged obscenity, it was only legally admitted into the United States after a long battle by Random House in the courts ending in 1934. The Random House Archives contain letters and documents relating to this famous case.

^ Return to Table of Contents

Arrangement

In 2021, a basic intellectual order was imposed on the collection. The order is roughly based on the original divisions from the typed finding aid.

Restrictions on Access

The majority of this collection is located off-site. You will need to request this material at least three business days in advance to use the collection in the Rare Book and Manuscript Library reading room. Cataloged correspondence and manuscripts (Boxes Cat 1 - Cat 55) and Toni Morrison's editorial files (Boxes 1265-1275, 1509-1533, and 1683-1684) are on-site.

Terms Governing Use and Reproduction

None of the materials may be published in any form in whole or in part without prior consultation with Random House, Inc. Single photocopies may be made for research purposes. The RBML maintains ownership of the physical material only. Copyright remains with the creator and his/her heirs. The responsibility to secure copyright permission rests with the patron.

Using this Finding Aid

This is a large collection. The arrangement reflects decades of organization, from the editors, secretaries, and records managers at Random House who created and used the records, to the stewards at the Rare Book and Manuscript Library who preserve and make them accessible using ever-evolving archival best practices. This electronic finding aid takes these historical arrangement practices, imposes a basic order, and makes the folder titles searchable. The best way to look for relevant material is to call up the full container list (here, or using the "View All" link to the left) and use your browser's Find function (Ctrl + F on Windows, Command + F on Mac).

History of the Finding Aid

Starting in the 1970s, archivists created typewritten description for each accession, with the document for every new accession stapled to the back of the existing description. This document served as the primary access point for non-cataloged material, and was heavily annotated. In 2010, this document was scanned into a PDF file and published online. In 2019, Columbia student Molly Boord examined the boxes and edited an OCR version of the PDF into a Word document. In 2020 and 2021, Kevin Schlottmann worked from the Word document to impose an arrangement and imported the description into ArchiveSpace.

Processing Information

The Toni Morrison editorial files in the Random House records were reprocessed by Celeste Brewer in September-December 2021. A finding aid concordance documenting any changes in location or description made when the materials were reprocessed is available upon request.

Processing Information

The materials were previously housed in what appeared to be the original letter-size folders. These were placed in legal-sized manuscript boxes, some of which were over- or under-filled. Heavy use and repeated shipment to and from off-site storage further contributed to damage to the physical materials. During reprocessing, all folders were replaced with acid-free legal size folders. Annotated original folders were retained; all others were discarded. Photographs and torn documents were stored in polyester sleeves. Damaged boxes were replaced.

Processing Information

It also appears that some materials were shifted out of order by previous users, especially in the most heavily used folders, such as the Lucille Clifton, Henry Dumas, Angela Davis, and Black Book files. These were sorted and refiled in reverse chronological order in the appropriate folders, based on the order and organization of more lightly used files.

Processing Information

Boxes 1255-1275 previously contained a mixture of Toni Morrison's and Robert Loomis's editorial files, arranged in a single alphabetical sequence by the author's last name. However, there is no evidence that each of these groups of material are related. They seem to have been stored together because they arrived at the Rare Book and Manuscript Library at the same time. For ease of retrieval, these materials were physically separated. Loomis's editorial files are now located in Boxes 1255-1264, and Morrison's are now located in Boxes 1265-1275. Two more boxes were also added to the group of Morrison's materials in order to relieve overstuffing. These were numbered 1683 and 1684.

Loomis, Robert, 1941-1980

Scope and Contents

Boxes 789-814 are primarily of editor Robert D. Loomis, with a few files from the office of editor Robert Linscott. Among the catalogued authors' files is correspondence from such writers as Jim Bishop and John Toland. There are also a few earlier files, such as Schulberg, from Saxe Commins (1941-1951). Editorial Correspondence, boxes 1065-1073, includes files on Laura Hobson, William Safire and Earl Warren.

Processing Information:

Processing Information

The 1968-1980 Robert Loomis editorial files were formerly interfiled with Toni Morrison's 1968-1977 editorial files. They were separated and filed in boxes 1255-1274.

Morrison, Toni, 1968-1983

Biographical / Historical

Toni Morrison (1931-2019) worked as an editor in the adult trade division at Random House from approximately 1971 until 1983, when she left publishing to focus on her literary and academic careers. While her own writing generally took the form of novels, Morrison edited nonfiction, poetry, collections of short stories, and even a cookbook for Random House. Among the fiction writers and poets whose work she edited were Toni Cade Bambara, Barbara Chase-Riboud, Lucille Clifton, Gayl Jones, and June Jordan. Nonfiction works Morrison edited include Angela Davis's Autobiography (1974) and Women, Race and Class (1981), as well as Muhammad Ali's autobiography, The Greatest (1975). Many—though not all—of the works she edited addressed aspects of Black history and culture and feminist politics.

Biographical / Historical

Morrison's secretaries provided significant logistical assistance throughout the publishing process. They drafted routine internal memos and external correspondence, the latter of which included rejection letters sent to prospective authors. They also sometimes corresponded directly with authors whose manuscripts were under contract in Morrison's absence, for example, during her 1977 book tour for Song of Solomon. Morrison's secretaries included Roberta Moore (1972-1973), Janet Overton (1973-1975), Pat Chu (1975-1977), and Eileen Ahearn (1977-1983).

Related Materials:

Related Materials

Toni Morrison's personal papers at Princeton University also include a small amount of editorial material from her time at Random House.

Scope and Contents

These files document Toni Morrison's editorial work in Random House's adult trade department from approximately 1971 until 1983. They include author and agent correspondence, publishing contracts, book reviews clipped from newspapers and magazines, and records of book production and publicity. Production files frequently include author photographs, book jacket samples, and interoffice correspondence regarding deadlines, copy editing, and permissions and other legal matters. Publicity files include launch party and book tour arrangements, advertising arrangements, and efforts to secure "quotes" or "blurbs" from other well-known authors praising the work to be published. (Morrison frequently requested blurbs from Maya Angelou, James Baldwin, and Alice Walker.) Acknowledgments of manuscript receipt, rejection letters, and responses to prospective authors' inquiries are also present. Expense reports document Morrison's travel on behalf of Random House, usually to meet with contracted or prospective authors. Random House also seems to have supported a certain amount of travel for Morrison's own speaking engagements at universities or literary events.

Scope and Contents

Some files related to authors whose previous works had been edited by others appear to have been kept in Toni Morrison's files for reference. For example, Lucille Clifton's books Good Times and Good News About the Earth were edited by Natalie Lehmann-Haupt, Alice Mayhew, and Nan Talese, but the editorial files for these works are included alongside Toni Morrison's files for An Ordinary Woman and Generations.

Scope and Contents

While the files sometimes include partial manuscripts, both with and without editorial annotations, they generally do not contain extensive documentation of the ways Morrison's editorial influence shaped the published work. Feedback and suggestions for addressing specific issues in a manuscript can sometimes be found in correspondence with the author. It is possible that more comprehensive editorial feedback was delivered in person or over the telephone, or directly on manuscripts that were returned to the author.
