Historical Note

The Alumni Class records were initially collected for the Columbiana Collection. Many of these items (mostly class memorabilia) were then displayed during "Alumni Day." Starting in 1908, an Alumni Day or the mid-winter reunion was held every year on Lincoln's birthday (February 12) because it was the only business holiday in the year when alumni can visit their Alma Mater. Alumni would come back to campus, could join classes and enjoy the displays at the Columbiana Library (originally, room 307 Library).

The Columbiana Collection was built up by alumnus (CC 1877, Law 1879), clerk of the Board and University historian John B. Pine. After his death in 1922, a fulltime Columbiana curator was appointed "in order that the work of collecting memorabilia for the Columbiana Collection ... should suffer no relapse but should be carried on and extended." Robert Arrowsmith CC 1882 was the first Columbiana curator (1923-1929), followed by Milton Halsey Thomas (1929-1959). According to the Columbia Alumni News, June 1, 1923, (460) "[i]t is hoped eventually to have a complete individual record of each class in the shape of class albums, scrap books, class programmes, publications and other memorabilia, so arranged that information regarding any class activity or material for a class reunion shall be at once procurable."

Summary

The Alumni Class Records contains materials pertaining to the alumni from the Classes of 1842 to 1963, from Columbia College and the School of Mines, later the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences. Content includes programs, menus, invitations, clippings, correspondence, and printed matter related to activities from college days to the many reunion events in the subsequent years.

Series I: Alumni Class Records

Scope and Contents

The Alumni Class records are made up of two types of records: those from the college days and those from the alumni events. The first type of records includes class day programs, menus, dance cards, invitations, chapel attendance rosters, college acceptance letters, class schedules, etc. The second type is mostly reunion programs, menus, invitations, minutes, newsletters, necrologies, directories, class histories, and the correspondence kept by class secretaries. There are clippings from student publications (Columbian yearbook, Acta Columbiana and Spectator newspaper) but also from the alumni magazine and newspapers. Clippings can be loose or collected in scrapbooks. Some classes are better documented than others. Materials are organized by class year.

Freshman Directory "The Fifty-Four", 1951	box 18	folder 8
Scope and Contents
The facebook or freshman directories at Columbia College started in 1950 for the Class of 1954. Students were photographed on campus and the directory was later compiled and published during their freshman year (in this case, it was actually published in 1951, during their second semester). Soon after that, the facebook was published by the yearbook staff. For the first 20 years, the year on the cover of the facebook refers to the graduating class year (1954-1975). This means that the 1975 facebook features students who entered in the fall of 1970.
