Historical Note

The Rare Book & Manuscript Library (RBML) is Columbia's principal repository for primary sources. The range of collections in RBML span more than 4,000 years and comprise rare printed works, cylinder seals, cuneiform tablets, papyri, and Coptic ostraca; medieval and renaissance manuscripts; as well as art, realia and born-digital objects. Some 500,000 printed books and 90,000 linear feet (17 miles) of manuscripts, personal papers, and records form the core of the RBML holdings. One can find manuscripts from as early as the 14th century to the modern archives relating to Herman Wouk, Erica Jong, Serge Prokofiev, and Arthur Mitchell.

Archives as varied as the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Random House, and Amnesty International-USA, and the archives of Columbia University are available for research.

Directors of the Rare Book & Manuscript Library Hellmut Lehmann-Haupt (1930-1939); Charles Adams (1939-1945); Roland O. Baughman (1946-1967); Charles Mixer, Assistant Director of Libraries for Special Collections (1968-1972)*; Kenneth A. Lohf, Librarian for Rare Books & Manuscripts (1968-1993); Bernard Crystal, Acting Director (1993); Jean W. Ashton (1993-2005); Janet Gerzt, Interim Director (2005-2006); Michael Ryan (2006-2013); Barbara Rockenbach, Interim Director (2013-2014); Sean Quimby (2014-2020); Kevin W. Schlottmann, Interim Director (2020-2021).

* Baughman died suddenly in August 1967 and it was decided that Mixer would take on administrative responsibilities for the department (he was the Assistant Director of Libraries at that time and had his title revised in February 1968 to be "Assistant Director of Libraries for Special Collections") while Lohf took over the responsibilities for rare books issues (he had his titled revised in 1968 to be Librarian for Rare Books & Manuscript to reflect these new responsibilities).

Series III: Exhibitions and Publications, 1918-2022

Scope and Contents

This series contains materials related to exhibitions and publications produced by the Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

Subseries III.1. Exhibition Files, 1918-1999

Scope and Contents

This subseries contains the Columbia University Libraries exhibition correspondence, text, labels, programs, invitations, press releases, photographs, negatives, newspaper clippings, etc. The files are organized alphabetically by the name or subject of the exhibition and the dates refer to the exhibition dates. It includes some exhibitions not held at Columbia but which featured materials on loan from the Columbia University Libraries. These records are, for the most part, organized chronologically.

Subseries III.2. Exhibition Publications, 1933- 2016

Scope and Contents

This subseries consists of background material, invoices, galley proofs, photographs and catalog files related to RBML exhibitions and projects, including the Lohf Years exhibit, the Spewack exhibit and the "Collections and Treasures" exhibit. Also includes correspondence, images, press releases and catalog proofs related to an exhibit on the centenary of the birth of John Masefield. There are materials related to the publishing of catalogs and introductions written by Alfred C. Berol, an avid collector of rare books and manuscripts, and president of the Eagle Pencil Company (Berol Corp). Introductions written by Berol include the Solton Engel catalog, the Lewis and Clark catalog, and "A Letter from Henry Laurens to his son John Laurens." Berol was a donor to the Columbia collection and established the Arthur Rackham collection. This subseries also contains the exhibition catalogs, programs and brochures; collection catalogues and selection brochures; and information guides published by the Columbia University Libraries. There are publications related to events and exhibitions, others produced to announce gifts and acquisitions, and publications issued by the Friends of the Columbia University Libraries. Materials are organized chronologically.

Subseries III.6. Columbia Library Columns, 1951- 1995

Scope and Contents

This subseries contains the production files for the issues of the Library's journal, Columbia Library Columns. The early files contain the illustrations, photographic prints and negatives, included in the issues. Starting in the 1980s, the files also include correspondence with the writers and the publisher, story drafts, issue layouts, etc. There are also folders with general correspondence for the run of the journal as well as subscription information at the end of the subseries. The files are organized by academic year at first, and later by issue. Library Columns was published three times a year: November, February and May. The last issue was printed in May 1994. This subseries also includes a mostly complete run of the Library Columns issues (which have been digitized and are available online). It includes a special edition published for the Columbia University $200 Million Campaign in 1969 and an index of the publication covering from 1951 to 1971.

Conditions Governing Access

All administrative records of the University are restricted for 25 years from the date of creation.

Scope and Contents

Jennifer B. Lee was an RBML's Public Services Librarian and later the inaugural Curator for the Performing Arts. She was in charge of in-house exhibitions and served as the registrar for exhibition loans. The in-house exhibition files are organized alphabetically and folders are named for the subject or collection featured in the exhibition. The titles usually include the exhibition title and exhibition location or display space. If available, links to the online exhibitions are included below.

Scope and Contents

This series contains the records related to facilities management such as maintenance logs, disaster reports and space inventories. The majority of the series is related to the construction of the "new" library on top of Butler Library in the early 1980s. The series consists of correspondence, photographs, planning and construction files; blue prints; financial records for fundraising; construction memos and other records that resulted from the renovation made to the Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

Conditions Governing Access:Conditions Governing Access

Materials are restricted. To request permission, please email rbml@columbia.edu.

Scope and Contents

The Reading room registers series consists of ledgers and pages of registration sheets (sign-in registers) containing information about users of the Rare Book and Manuscript Library and the predecessors that made up the Department of Special Collections. Over the years, the different collections have kept joint or separate registers. A new joint reading room was created in 1985 for manuscript and rare book readers, which resulted in a joint ledger/register of researchers. This series also contains the microfilm reading machine book (1947-1949), and the guest book of the Rare Book department (1931-1937), the guest book/register for the Plimpton Library, the David Eugene Smith Library, and the Dale Library; the register of the Library of the American Type Founder's Company (1937-1947); and the Seligman Library register (1938-1955). Patron information was entered into an Access database between July 9, 2010 and February 1, 2013. Beginning in February 2013, all patron information is entered in the Special Collections Research Account Aeon software.

Series VIII: Call Slips, 1971- 2013

Conditions Governing Access:

Conditions Governing Access

Materials are restricted. To request permission, please email rbml@columbia.edu.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of charge cards that detail material used by researchers from the manuscripts collections, rare books and the Bakhmeteff archives. When material is requested from one of the Rare Book and Manuscript Libraries collections, a two-part, carbonless call slip is filled out, consisting of the original top half (the flimsy) and the carbon-copy (the charge card) bottom half. For rare books and some manuscript material (such as volumes and folders paged individually), the flimsy is left on the shelf in place of the material paged. Once material is shelved, the flimsy and the bottom half of the call slip are brought back together to check that material has been returned by the user and returned to its proper location.

Scope and Contents

The call slips, prior to the 1980s, featured a blue heading band for manuscript requests and a brown band for rare books. The form includes the user name and requested item title and location. The call slips are filed by academic year (June to July) in two sequences: the charge card is organized alphabetically by collection name and the flimsies are organized chronologically by shelving date. Originally kept separately by division, call slips for all collections were filed together starting in the fall of 2008 (all of RBML collections combined). Since February 2013, all user information is entered in the Special Collections Research Account Aeon software.

Scope and Contents

This series contains the departmental statistics: the gifts and additions or change in size of the collection figures; the processing statistics for manuscripts and book cataloguing; and the public services or reference statistics, including circulation and reading room attendance numbers. Most of these figures are then included in the annual reports (see Series II). Later statistics can be found in Series I. Office and day files (e.g., Reference statistics, 2005-2009 in Box 330).

Series X: Registration Forms, 1949- 2013

Conditions Governing Access:

Conditions Governing Access

Materials are restricted; please contact rbml@columbia.edu to request permission to access the records.

Scope and Contents

Registration forms are filled out by researchers when they first arrive at the library. These forms were originally called permission forms since the user was "apply[ing] for permission to read and to take notes" from letters and manuscripts in the collection. Users had to specify not only which materials they were interested in but also they had to state the purpose of their research, supply a local and a permanent address, enter a Columbia or other affiliation, and sign the form. Once submitted, the form recorded the library staff member who granted permission, the date, and any limitations on access. By 1972, researchers can find on the form the rules governing the use of manuscripts: permission to examine, permission to publish and permission for photographic or other reproductions (staff approval is no longer recorded on the form). In 1996 the format of the registration form is adapted in order to include space for a copy of the researcher's Columbia or government-issued ID. The University Archives started using registration card in 2005. In August 2009, all divisions in the RBML adopted the University Archives registration card and these were filed together (no longer by division). Since February 2013, all user information is entered in the Special Collections Research Account Aeon software. The registration forms are filed alphabetically by researcher's last name. The University Archives patron registration cards (and the ones used by all RBML divisions starting August 2009) are organized by registration numbers, which were assigned sequentially.

Series XIII: Legacy Description

Scope and Contents

This series contains library and archival description that is no longer current for finding and managing RBML materials, but may be of historical interest.

Title/Description	Instances
-------------------	-----------

Scanned PDF finding aids

Scope and Contents

In the mid 2000s, typewritten finding aids for archival collections (both RBML and Bahkmeteff) were scanned to PDF and posted online. The information in these files has mostly been superceded by description managed first in EAD and then as of 2019 in ArchiveSpace. These 2487 PDF files are preserved at Level 1, and can be accessed by request.

HTML finding aids

Scope and Contents

Before EAD was adopted in the late 2000s, some archival description was encoded directly into HTML finding aids. 218 such finding aids are preserved here.
